ARRESTS UNITED IN PROBE

McNamee Indicted; Allen Dismisses Panel After Five Weeks' Work

Attorney-General Allen today discharged the Special Grand Jury created five weeks ago at his request. He charged efforts had been made to tamper with the jurors.

The possibility of arrests was admitted today at the Attorney-General's office. On the last day of its official existence the jury returned indictments in sixty-nine counts against officers of the U. V. Greene Companies and the Prudential Trust Company.

McNAMEE INDICTED.
John H. H. McNamee, former president of the Prudential Trust Company, and William P. Bailey, former treasurer, were indicted, charged with the larceny of $104,541 from the savings department. They were charged also with making false returns to the bank commissioners.

Seven officers of the U. V. Greene Company were indicted charged with conspiring to commit grave fraud. They also:

Henry V. Greene, Henry E. Robinson, Walter G. Burns, Austin H. Pinkham, Edmund G. Campbell, William U. Sherman and Lester Collins.

BRISBANE PICTURES GAME

Notes Cheers of Crowd for "All" Smith, Pershing and Mathewson

By ARTHUR BRISBANE
Copyright, 1922, by Commonwealth News Service.
Polo Grounds, New York, Oct. 4.—First game for the championship of American baseball.

At one minute of two the band is playing for Al Smith, once Governor of New York, who expects to be elected again next month. Mr. Smith is a little late, charge of post package stationery is a secretary. His bows, head now bald, stationery is wearing.

Three moments for again for the newspaper photographers—one for Pershing, mild, then for Al Smith, less wild. Third for Christy Mathewson, great ex-athlete player, now fighting the real world champion, consumption. Great photographing and cheering for Mathewson. "Take off your hat Matty, let them see you." With all the clinging moisture of a baseball player, Matty keeps it on.

You know what it is all about, or cognate. A few Americans play baseball, while millions sit and watch, taking their exercise vicariously.

But excuse an interruption. A young lady walks out on the green and dirt field in tidbits, very high up, no corset. The fact asserts it self after the fashion of the mammal.

WOMAN'S BODY FOUND ON BEACH

Gloucester, Oct. 4.—The sea cat up another tragic mystery this noon, when Guy Parsons, fisherman, found the body of a woman floating off Good Harbor beach.

The woman had apparently been dead about an hour. Her head and face were marked by many cuts and bruises.

The body was brought ashore and taken to the Greely undertaking room. Medical Examiner P. F. Moore was unable to tell, by preliminary examination, whether death was due to drowning or more violent cause. The office of District Attorney R. Howard Donnell was immediately notified in preparation for an autopsy.

There was no immediate means of identification. The woman was a blonde and wore a tailored brown overcoat over a dark-blue serge suit.

GASTON AND FITZ TO TOUR THE STATE
All Democratic Congressional candidates in Massachusetts met at informal luncheon in the American House and outlined plans for the coming campaign. It was agreed that Colonel William A. Gaston, candidate for the Senate, and John P. Fitzgerald, candidate for Governor, would tour the State during the next ten days, visiting every Congressional district in the interests of registration. Former Congressman William F. Fitts was chosen to head the campaign committee.

New York, Oct. 4.—Standing in front of a mirror at his home, Harry Belzer, clerk, killed himself with a revolver, pressing it against his temple.

40,000 ATTEND FIRST GAME

Polo Grounds, N. Y., Oct. 4.—More than 40,000 fans saw the Giants win the first game of the world series from the Yankees today.

Advance dope on the pitchers came true. McGraw sent his southpaw Nehf after the first game. Bush started for the Yanks. Groh got the first hit of the series on his first time up. Babe Ruth was the first to fan. He whiffed on his first trip to the plate.

The Giants looked dangerous in the third when with two gone Groh tripped. Frisch, however, flied out.

HUB KU KLUX OPEN "WAR FOR P. C. AMERICANISTS"

PREDICT PARADE OF 300,000 IN BOSTON STREETS

GRAND JURY WHICH ALLEGE DISCHARGED ALLEN CHARGES GRAND JURY PLOTS

The Ku Klux has shown its fiery double cross to Boston. The boogey-boo Klansmen have issued their warning to Jews, Catholics, negroes, Mohammedans, radicals and "foreigners."

The Klansmen declare that within a year 300,000 night-shirted, white-hooded, silent men will march around Boston Common. These men, they say, will belong to other than Boston Klan No. 1, Team of Massachusetts, Knights of the Ku Klux Klan.

Imperial Klomard William J. Mahoney predicts Boston will witness such a parade with the sanction of the city authorities.

The plot to substitute government by law and order, which has been carried on under cover for months, came out in the open with a meeting at Odd Fellows Hall in North Cambridge. Systematic organization of the Klan in Boston was started immediately after the venomous address of Klomard Mahoney, the minister who threw away his surplus to the nightgown and mask.

MAHONEY IN HIDING. Mahoney kept himself well under cover following the North Cambridge meeting. He was not registered as he had in Greater Boston.

Visiting Methodist clergymen are supposed to register at the Metropolitan Hotel, No. 315 Boylston street. Mahoney had not registered there, nor was he known there.

A reporter visited the office of the Rev. Mahoney in an effort to locate him, and was informed by Danaher Lloyd that the Coalition would not reveal Mahoney's whereabouts.

"The Supreme Klomard will not talk to newspaper men," Mr. Lloyd said. "Least of all you may be sure he will not talk to any reporter employed by a Boston newspaper."

ENTRANCE BY TICKET. Guards stationed at every entrance to the hall closely scrutinized the credentials of all who attended the North Cambridge meeting. A few women were seated in the gallery, an orchestra of women played selections before the meeting opened, and another woman, Mrs. Hurdley, sang the Star Spangled Banner and America.

But the chief interest was centered in the mysterious and hooded figures who, following two others carrying a fiery cross and an American flag, filed silently on to the platform and took their seats with folded arms amid an intense silence.

ALL BUT 3 HIDDEN. Only the names of three persons were made public. Those in charge of the gathering and the officials connected with it were hidden under the mysterious symbolism of the "Ironville" insignia.

"Those who made themselves known were Telfair Minton, of the Loyal Coalition; E. Eugene Parsonnet, lecturer and explorer, formerly connected with a Boston newspaper as a photographer, and the Rev. William James Mahoney, D. D., a flag of the clergymen, Imperial Klomard of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, the third highest official in the Klan.

PREDICT 300,000 IN HIDE. Five American flags, commencing with the flag of the original thirteen states of the Union, hung from the balcony of the hall. A huge American flag was draped at the rear of the platform, a smaller flag covered

Thomas W. Sumner, a druggist of No. 555 East Broadway, was foreman of the special grand jury. The other members were: William Bernstein, clerk, No. 7 Parkman street; John H. Brown, agent, No. 25 Pleasant street; Ike Cohen, salesman, No. 34 Crawford street; Michael J. Conroy, laborer, No. 68 A street; Michael J. Duany, laborer, No. 500 Albany street; Edward Delle, salesman, No. 49 Church street; Frank E. Fleming, mechanic, No. 51 Baxter street; Joseph P. Garrett, carpenter, No. 19 Dundas street; Harry Green, merchant, No. 58 Maverick square; John Haniffy, laborer, No. 8 Andrews place; Hyman Kalser, claimant, No. 17 Willard street; Nathan Korman, carpenter, No. 145 Meridian street; Daniel J. McKinnon, foreman, No. 448 East Fourth street; Harry E. Publick, painter, No. 10 Crescent avenue; Thomas J. Powers, clerk, No. 91 Chelsea street; James Sullivan, foreman, No. 553 Dorchester avenue; Thomas Wall, pressman, No. 517 Broadway, Chelsea; Gustav H. Wuth, foreman, No. 183 Boylston street.

The speakers' table on which rested a naked sword with the hilt pointing towards the audience and a Bible opened at the 13th chapter of the Romans. This chapter, the Imperial Klomard afterwards explained, represented the spiritual charter of the Klansmen.

The Imperial Klomard made a declaration that within a year Boston citizens would witness the spectacle of more than 300,000 Knights parading their streets, "with the sanction of the city authorities."

HELD BY "BOSTON KLAN."

Following the meeting, an announcement was made that all who wished further information regarding membership in the organization should obtain it by communicating with a Boston office box.

Officials of the order who declined to state their names said that the meeting was held by the Boston Klan No. 1, Team of Massachusetts, Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, and that the organization was about a year old and growing rapidly. Most of those present were before in their lapels indicating that they were members of orders other than Jewish or Catholic societies.

VITUPERATION FLOWS.

A hooded Klansman, garbed in a robe that covered his figure and with a white mask which had only eyes holes slit, advanced toward the speakers' table and offered a prayer in which he said in part:

"Lord give us men."

"The invisible empire calls for men."

"Klan whom the spoils of office cannot buy."

"Real men, courageous men of deep character."

"Thou shall run the earth God give us men."

Lauding immediately into a stream of vituperation against Catholics and Jews in general.

Knights of Columbus and newspaper editors in particular, the Imperial Klomard commenced by denouncing the New York World, which some months ago exposed the Ku Klux Klan as a damnable, mongrel hybrid breed with a hood-nose Jew origin.

ASSAULT HEARST.

American newspapers in general were characterized as detestable organs "to the cluck of cash and the clatter of voice that comes from Rome."

"The Boston press in particular," the speaker said, "was damnable and prejudiced against the best and highest interests of this American nation of ours while Mr. William Randolph Hearst, as publisher of the Atlanta City Georgian, was described as the owner of that slime sheet who wanted to be but never would be president of the United States."

In stating the qualifications for membership in the Klan, Dr. Mahoney said that he had no apology to offer any "Irish-Catholic, Jew or any other alien for the task of hindering together real Americans in a real American machine."

"TO HELL" WITH K. O. F. C.

"This is a Protestant organization and we don't apologize to Cardinal O'Connell for it," he said and then leaning to where the reporter for the Boston American sat, he added:

"But that in the morning paper, 'No Knight of Columbus will ever be able to rewrite the history of America, position would dominate and enslave this country in a quarter of a century.'"

Hiding in his hand what he said was a copy of the ritual of the Klan, a lawless organization, lies from William Randolph Hearst and hood-necked Pultizer down, every one of them.

"I say to hell with them."

Following his attack on the press of the country the speaker said that a conference of Klan leaders had recently been held in Washington.

DEFIES ROMIE AND JEWS.

"We Americans are determined to create a free press and we are creating a machine to work on the press of this nation and we will have real American newspapers pleading the cause of America and not the cause of Rome and Jerusalem. Any Klan is a lawless organization, lies from William Randolph Hearst and hood-necked Pultizer down, every one of them."

"This is a decidedly white man's organization and, please God, it never will be otherwise. It does not mean we are setting out to create race prejudice or conflict, but the white man's race must be preserved if civilization is to last in this world."

The same thing that keeps a Jew from becoming a Knight Templar keeps him out of the Ku Klux Klan. He must subscribe to the tenets of the Christian religion and a Catholic could not get a dispensation from the Pope of Rome to join the Klan.

TO FIGHT RADICALISM.

"We of the new South have come to heal the breach that there may be no separating line, no North and South, but one nation and our flag must never be displayed by any other flag, not even the flag of the Pope."

The release of young Penna comes a case that has attracted wide attention. The boy, aged sixteen and small of stature, was arrested on September 19 during a melee on Washington street. Policeman Edward J. Winn, the complainant, claimed the boy attempted to rescue a man who was being held for extortion.

The boy was badly battered at the time. He claimed that he was released by a police officer until he was in a weak condition. The boy said he was looking for scores of others when he was seized and dragged into the police station.

Judge Sullivan said there was no evidence to believe that the boy attempted to obstruct a police officer in the performance of his duty. He said to prove that he was given of the alleged assault on an officer.

DISPARAGES K. O. F. C.

Quoting from what he said was the ritual of the third degree, Knights of Columbus, he said that members of that organization were required to wear "black robes covering the whole of their ordinary habit and will be 'black'."

"And I will place side by side the conduct of the poorest Knight of the Ku Klux Klan with the best Knight of Columbus," he added.

The Klomard denied that there was any connection between Mahoney and the Klan, but added that every member of the Imperial Council of the Klan, save three, was a Mason.

CLIMBING INTO THE REAR SEAT. Penna made advances which terrified 13-year-old Catherine Morrison, whom he had invited from her room on West Roxbury street the evening before.

When she resisted, as the girl told in West Roxbury court today, Penna climbed into the rear seat of her one-hand and threatened her with a razor in the other. The girl's brother, Ernest, intervened and Penna was taken to the police station.

ALLEN CHARGES GRAND JURY PLOTS

Specifically mentioned a director and another official of the Hanover Trust Company as being guilty of efforts to induce influence certain of the grand jurors.

Shortly before noon the jurors were summoned before Judge Ellis Bishop in the second floor of the Superior Court. This was preceded by a conference between Allen, his assistants, Hurwitz and Goldberg, and Chief Justice Hall of the Superior Court.

Mr. Allen charged that the jurors were guilty of a conspiracy to influence the grand jury, and that certain of them were heard discussing the case with parties liable to indictment, both in the courtroom and out of it, and that the jurors were seen in the company of these men under circumstances that made the discharge of the special body imperative.

The jurors were polled.

Assistant Attorney General Hurwitz then announced there would be further indictments against the H. V. Green and Prudential Trust companies.

Allen then rose and told of the inception of the special grand jury, which was created by an act of Legislature particularly for the purpose of investigating the case of the Green, Hanover, Prudential and other cases, said evidence to be presented only by the Attorney General and his assistants, and not by the jurors.

Under this special act Mr. Allen was given the right to discharge the members of the grand jury without having to see fit to do so.

The special grand jury has been sitting for five weeks.

For two weeks it has been considering the case of the Green, Hanover, Prudential and other cases.

It was during the consideration of the evidence against the Hanover Trust Company that it became evident that the jurors were being influenced by the judgment of the jurors. Mr. Allen said.

Letters were sent to the jurors which contained instructions to the jurors to the facts in the case and prohibited to an impartial consideration of the evidence. He said, these letters were traced to the offices of the Hanover Trust Company.

NATURE OF CHARGES.

Witnesses of the State were answered by the individual in the corridors of the courtroom, before and after the trial, and the Attorney General was traced to the offices of the Hanover Trust Company.

Another official of the company, after investigation, was seen in the corridors of the courtroom, before and after the trial, and the Attorney General was traced to the offices of the Hanover Trust Company.

Mr. Allen, the Attorney General added, complaining that efforts were being made to cause the jurors to be biased, and expressing the opinion that it was impossible for the jury under the circumstances to properly continue in its work or to view any evidence impartially.

Mr. Allen declared there were some members of the grand jury who were in no way involved in the case, and he requested that the jurors be removed from the case.

Mr. Allen refused to state whether a new grand jury would be chosen immediately to succeed the discharged body, and to continue with the case. He would not say whether or not there was any actual passing of money or efforts to bribe the jurors with money, nor would he state whether any further action will be taken against any of the members of the grand jury.

"Sufficient unto the day is the action thereof," he said significantly.

HELPING ALLEN.

Assistant Attorney General Albert Hurwitz and Lewis Goldberg have been helping Mr. Allen in the prosecution of evidence against the Hanover Trust Company and other companies, including the H. V. Green Company and associated enterprises. Mr. Allen has insisted from the start that District Attorney O'Brien keep out of the hearing.

For the past week the jury has been hearing evidence in the case of the Hanover Trust Company. Mr. Hurwitz, who was treasurer of the company, has been a witness.

Rat Catchers' Union Goes on Strike

RODENTS CAN WAKE MERRY

Trappers, Ferrets and Dogs
Quit Work; Wage Boost
Is Demanded

When the rat-catchers are out, the mice will play. And the rat-catchers are out. For the first time in its history, Boston Local No. 1, Rodent Hunters of America, is out on a strike.

The strikers—there are sixteen of them, 104 per cent, of the rat-catchers of Greater Boston—demand the right of collective bargaining, the right to organize, a six-hour instead of a ten-hour night, no Sunday work, more money and the elimination of piece work.

There are two concerns that have practically a monopoly of rat-catching in this part of the State. The system is this:

HOW THEY WORK.
The rat-catcher, accompanied by a dog and a ferret, stalks the rat to his corner. If the rat-hole is large enough, the dog works his way in and engages the rodent in deadly battle. If the poach can't reach the rat, or the rat is getting the better of the fight, the ferret is launched into the fray.

Between the rodent and the ferret, the average rat hasn't got much chance than George had with Milt. But sometimes an unusually paragon rat appears. There have been rats caught by union rat-catchers that measured fourteen to twenty inches from port to starboard. It is then that the organized rat-catcher earns his modest pay of 45 cents an hour. He engages in personal combat with the rat, and no holds barred.

WAGE 50 CENTS AN HOUR.
One of the firms wanted to pay the rat catchers so much for each dead rat they brought here. The catchers refused and got the 45 cents per hour rate. Now they want 50 cents an hour.

Efforts to break in new men have proved fruitless. The dogs and ferrets used to catch rats are old and refuse to work efficiently for strangers, according to W. G. Goeckle, head of one of the concerns hit by the strike. This complicates the work of keeping down the rats, and the two concerns are fighting hard to keep up their contracts to keep the houses and plants of the various clients free from the pests.

O'LEARY CHARGES DROPPED
The commission included Dr. George N. Miller, James V. May, Charles E. Sullivan and Abraham Myerson. These went to the jail Monday. Murphy refused to submit to a mental examination. The conclusion of the alienists are based on Murphy's long institutional and hospital record, the alienist's personal observations of the subject and information obtained from jail officials.

WOMAN SENTENCED ROBBING ORCHARD
Margie Minor, fifty-eight years old of No. 34 Minor street, was sentenced to thirty days in the House of Correction by Judge Blumstein in the Dedham Court today when she pleaded guilty to larceny of apples from the orchard of Florence Morris of No. 38 Morris street. Early today Patrolman Brown saw Mrs. Minor gathering pears and apples in the orchard belonging to Mrs. Morris. The police had received many complaints that orchard vandals were operating in the district and so Mrs. Minor was arrested. Mrs. Minor appeared and was placed under $100 bonds.

Found in Swamp

MRS. ANNIE TOWNES
Roxbury woman found in Saugus swamp; husband arrested.

A search in the Salvation Army may be brought to light as the result of the attempt to murder Mrs. Annie Townes of No. 134 Fellows street, Roxbury.

Mrs. Townes, found shortly after midnight today by a passing motorist, as she lay in the roadside ditches, accused her husband, Alvin S. Townes, of trying to kill her.

The woman was found at the edge of a lonely swamp in Saugus. She had been beaten over the head with an iron bar. She was taken to the Lynn Hospital, where it was said her skull was fractured and she could not recover.

Townes, arrested shortly after Mrs. Townes' statement, is a former Salvation Army worker. He was discharged some time ago. It was learned, following his alleged desertion of his wife. Since last May, according to the story told by his mother, Mrs. Wilbur, of No. 99 Harrison avenue, he has been living with a young woman worker of the Salvation Army.

Townes has Indian blood in his veins, Mrs. Wilbur said, and can't read or write.

HUSBAND ARRESTED.
Townes was placed under arrest early today at his home on Adams street, Roxbury, by officers of the Roxbury Crossing station. He was taken at once to Saugus, where the police waited for a further report on his wife's condition before placing anything more serious than a charge of assault and battery against him.

Later Townes was removed to the Salem Jail. He was set at $100,000, as the police hope that Mrs. Townes may be sufficiently recovered by that time to testify against him.

During the past week Townes was away from home on October 2, last night, however, just after dark, he went to the house in a four-wheel car with a man in the back seat. Entering the house he told his wife to put her coat on and accompany him for a ride.

Mrs. Townes continued, and joined him. It was five hours later that Mrs. Townes was found by the roadside in Saugus. George W. Phillips of No. 125 Chestnut Hill avenue, Boston, was driving a truck along the Salem Turnpike, where it winds through a lonely, swampy marsh.

Hearing guns come from the grass at the side of the road, he investigated. Three weeks ago, and the couple went to live with her seventy-five-year-old father, Henry Barry, at the Fellows street address.

They continued to quarrel, however, and their married life was anything but happy.

INSISTS ON SINGLE FARE FOR DISTRICT

Renews Demand for Five-Cent Fare for the People of Entire City

Mayor James M. Curley, in a speech before the State Department of Public Utilities, today declared the city of Boston will put the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway out of business in Boston if it continues to stand in the way of continuous service and a single rate of fare for the people of Hyde Park.

He declared the public will soon be forced to choose between a five-cent fare and complete public ownership of the Elevated.

He declared the five-cent fare can be established by compelling the public trustees of the Elevated to cut in half the amount they are annually setting aside to rebuild the road and by placing the balance of the cost of operation upon general taxation.

It would be far better for the poor people of the city to be paying their fare on the Elevated than for the family of five to be contributing $150 a year in increased fares, he said, while the owners of big business interests in downtown Boston, which could not do business for six months without the Elevated, ride in autos instead of street cars and pay not a nickel to the B.

JACKSON'S VIEWS.
Chairman James F. Jackson of the Elevated public trustees declared at the same hearing the Elevated is ready to take over and operate the Eastern Massachusetts lines in Hyde Park if a fair rental or purchase price can be reached with the Eastern Massachusetts.

He said the Elevated is also ready to go ahead with the Dorchester tunnel extension and development, which is estimated to cost $4,000,000.

He said the Elevated is ready to take over and operate the Eastern Massachusetts lines in Revere and Chelsea.

He said the Elevated is unwilling because of the excessive cost, to extend the rapid transit service beyond Everett.

Fred A. Cummings, speaking for the Eastern Massachusetts, denied the trustees have stood in the way of solving the Hyde Park situation. Any of their line in Hyde Park, Chelsea or Revere, he said, can be taken over at any time by eminent domain. The trustees were eager only to receive a fair price, he said.

Mayor Curley followed former city attorney George Herbert Parker, who, representing amusement enterprises at the Board, contended that the service and the rate of fare between the city and the beach. He urged that the Elevated take over and operate the Eastern Massachusetts lines in this congested district.

CURLEY'S POSITION.
"We are more concerned with Boston problems," said Mayor Curley, "and are interested in our own until our own problems are definitely solved. It is interesting to regard Revere Beach, but what about our own Blue Hills Reservation, for example, which is inaccessible to all who cannot afford to pay 50 cents fare?"

"The Hyde Park and Revere situation has been an open sore for years. The city of Boston expended $100,000 to widen Hyde Park avenue and use of the Blue Hills Reservation, but it still is undeveloped."

"That situation has been caused by the failure of the Eastern Massachusetts trustees to abandon a property that is a losing proposition unless they obtained an exorbitant price for it. We have been unable to induce any business and new business to locate or develop there for that reason."

Do men "save themselves" more than women do?

MAN'S work is no more exhausting than woman's. From the time she gets up in the morning until the last task at night, a woman is often on her feet all day. Millions never learn to spare themselves.

Yet men have used a simple way of saving energy for years—8 out of 10 do today.

A man who had the same problem so many women have

Twenty-five years ago a man who worked constantly on his feet found himself with little energy when work was over—with a backache each night in the bargain.

One day instead of standing all day on the hard floor he stood on a rubber mat. The effect astonished him. He felt better that night than he had in weeks. Next day he cut two pieces of rubber from the mat and fastened them to the heels of his shoes.

And that was the beginning of the idea that resulted in O'Sullivan's Heels!

Although men took it up first, millions of women today are finding how these heels can save their energy—can stop the needless waste that takes so much of their strength.

If you do wear "rubber heels"
Look at them!

Are they O'Sullivan's? It will pay you to find out! Like all good things O'Sullivan's have been widely imitated.

If yours are not O'Sullivan's—don't say "rubber heels" next time. Tell your repairman to put on O'Sullivan's—and notice the difference at the end of each day! See how much freer you are from tiredness and strain.

There is an O'Sullivan Heel for practically every style of women's shoes—for the high Cuban heel as well as for the various low heel types and the "in-between" styles. O'Sullivan's are always adapted for the prevailing mode.

Furthermore, as millions of women are finding out, they preserve the original trim appearance of the heel and prevent the running-over that occurs so quickly with ordinary heels.

O'Sullivan's usually cost you no more than ordinary rubber heels. But wear a pair—and you'll know why millions always insist on them!

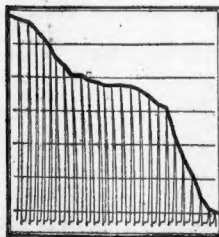

Brooklyn Bridge could not withstand them

Engineers report that the shocks and jars from heavy traffic are slowly weakening Brooklyn Bridge.

But this is not the only structure under strain.

They tell us further that heavy traffic in our modern cities keeps every building, street, and sidewalk in constant vibration.

Is it any wonder that the human body, a delicate, sensitive instrument, should need some simple protection against vibrations that even steel cables cannot indefinitely withstand?

This diagram shows how the average man's energy falls. Do you go down too far, each day toward exhaustion?

LEADING BAY STATE CITIZENS OPPOSE MOVIE CENSOR

GENERAL COLE HEADS ORGANIZATION FORMED TO FIGHT PROPAGANDA

Headed by Brigadier-General Charles H. Cole, a State-wide committee of distinguished citizens have organized themselves to combat propaganda for State censorship of motion pictures.

It places absolute power in the control of one man to determine what the other 5,000,000 people of the State may see.

UN-AMERICAN. It gives him the un-American authority to promote propaganda for his friends and against those whom he dislikes for social, business, political or other reasons.

It can be used as a weapon to destroy organized labor or to destroy legitimate business.

It is an entering wedge to censor away the democratic ideals and the American people.

The above are some of the reasons which have caused these men and women to band themselves together in a fight against State censorship.

The presence of the committee is interesting. It includes gallant war veterans, clergymen, business men of prominence, the sons of immigrants who have suffered censorship and other forms of oppression elsewhere in the world, and the representatives of old Yankee families who have their own sturdy ideas of how far a government should go in breaking down the rights of the people.

Among them: General Cole, former five times commander of the 1st Massachusetts Infantry, and his wife, Mrs. Randolph Frothingham.

Dolly Sisters Return to U. S. Wearing Men's Trousers

New York, Oct. 4.—The Dolly Sisters, Jenny and Rosie, arrived on Majestic, wearing honest-to-goodness men's trousers. They were a bit bawdy at the knees and also the full length of the legs, but they were real trousers.

Their effectiveness, some one told them, seemed spoiled by long coats, which extended to the knees. At Des Moines they danced with King Alfonso of Spain, and from whom "we learned many Spanish steps," they said.

cratic central control that saves some of Prussian bureaucracy that American democracy.

"We condemn the giving of autocratic power to one man and his deputy to dictate what over 8,000,000 citizens of this State shall see upon the screen."

"We know that censorship of motion pictures is merely the opening wedge to censorship of all information, inspection and amusement of the people by books, magazines, drama, newspapers and advertising, as such purposes was openly proclaimed from the floor of the State Senate chamber by a supporter of this measure."

"We know that it is a physical impossibility for one man and his deputy to review sufficient films to supply the thousands of exhibitors in this State and that censorship means curtailment of business of many smaller houses, resulting in the handicapping of the free press and the free press."

"We know the taxpayers sufficiently burdened without instituting new and expensive department for the suppression of individual rights and privileges, without any advantage to the public taste, morals or pleasure."

PERFECT COVER UNTIL HE ROSE TO STARDOM

"Even as a husband, Rodolph Valentino was always the perfect lover—a perfect lover until he rose to stardom. Then came the day when he quietly announced that a divorce was best for the both of us. I had just suggested that he purchase a bungalow where we could live together and I was—oh so disappointed."

In this manner did Jean Ackers Valentino, divorced wife of Rodolph Valentino, describe the first intimation she had that everything was not as it seemed between her husband and herself.

"Yes he was poor when I met him and I introduced him to several film producers. I helped him to succeed but it was his own wonderful personality that brought success."

A divorce suit followed Rodolph's rapid rise to stardom. When the woman was had brought about his success as a moving picture actor had given all in her power to the man she loved, Rodolph tired of her.

Before the divorce became absolute the "divine man" married Miss Winifred Hudford.

"I can't believe it's all true even now," declared Jean Ackers Valentino. "It came to me and I felt that I should be free to carry out my work as successfully as I can. I do not think I should be married now. And yet he married Miss Hudford. But I wish him the best of luck in his career. My love has never dampened for Rodolph."

SUSPECT'S SOBBING BREAKS UP COURT

Portland, Oct. 4.—The loud sobbing of a murderer on trial here for the murder of his wife penetrated the corridors of the courthouse here today and brought the criminal session of Superior Court to an abrupt close shortly before noon.

Samuel Cousins of Westbrook, Me., charged with murdering his wife last April, caught near of his wife's person which was introduced as an exhibit during the testimony of the police officer who placed Cousins under arrest. Judge Sanborn was forced to order court adjourned until the prisoner regained his composure.

'MASHER' GETS FAKE POLICE INSPECTOR'S JAIL TERM

One month in jail for "masching" was the sentence meted out to Roy Montgomery of No. 4 Citizens road, Hallowell, today by Judge Lewis in Municipal Court. The court suspended sentence when Montgomery waived the right of appeal.

Two girls, young and pretty, appeared against the man, who is employed in the new John Hancock Building. The complainants, Elizabeth C. McCarty of No. 4 Waterville street and Alice L. Orndall of No. 41 Pearson street, West Somerville, testified that on several occasions recently, Montgomery "masched" them.

The girls are stenographers in the John Hancock Building and at various times they were obliged to pass close to where Montgomery was working. Invariably, they said, he made a dash in a manner which offended. Finally the girls sought police protection.

allow James Webster, alias James Clark, No. 118 West Brookline street, South End, posed as a Boston police inspector and tried to extort lunch money from Professor Frank Bell, of the New England Conservatory of Music, was told today, following Webster's arrest by Inspectors Cavanaugh and Crawford.

Webster, according to the story told by Professor Bell, broke out a room in which the professor and two other men were talking and stated that he had been sent from police headquarters to investigate a complaint.

Webster, going into further details, the "inspector" said: "Now you seem to be good fellows, and I don't want to make any arrests. But I think you ought to make it good for me."

The professor refused to listen to any proposal and maintained innocence of anything which a complaint could be made. Later the pseudo inspector met Bell and this time he asked for $200.

MRS. MILLS LONGED FOR TIME WHEN SHE COULD REMEND FOR RECTOR

LETTER FOUND AFTER KILLING INDICATED AN ELOPEMENT

New Brunswick, N. J., Oct. 4.—A letter, said to hint strongly that elopement plans had been made between Mrs. Eleanor Richmond Mills and the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, and written the day both were murdered, is in the hands of Middlesex County prosecutors, it was learned today.

One of the sentences in the letter has attracted considerable interest among county detectives and the State police, it was declared, because it reads:

"TO DO REMENDING."
"Oh, for the time when I can do your remending."

It was stated that during the autopsy on which Mrs. Hall, Mr. Hall, Mrs. Mills, Mr. Hall's mother, and Mrs. Minnie Clark went the day before the shooting, Hall tore his trousers while climbing a fence at Lake Hopatcong. The rip was noted by the doctors.

SAW LIGHT COAT.
His story was that he saw another machine, traveled towards it very slowly. He flashed his searchlight, he said, and saw that it contained a woman and two men. He asserted he could not identify the occupants, but noted that the woman wore a light-colored overcoat.

It was pointed out in the prosecutor's office that Mrs. Hall had said she wore a light-colored coat at 2 o'clock in the morning when she left her Nichols avenue home with her brother, Willie Stevens, in search of her missing husband.

Betty Alden Hears Miss Sewall Will Wed U. S. Senator Edge Next Spring

By BETTY ALDEN.

MISS ANDREA ADIE

Miss Andrea Adie will take the role of a saleswoman next week when she takes over a new place gown shop in aid of the Children's Hospital.

WHEN it became known just a few weeks ago that Miss Camilla Sewall was engaged to Senator Walter Evans Edge, society in Boston, Washington and New York immediately registered interest. Now the whisperings of Dame Rumor will not be denied that the daughter of the Harold M. Sewalls and Senator Edge will probably make the all-important trip to the altar next Spring.

Which means that a very youthful bride indeed will don her wedding tulle, for Miss Sewall is not yet of age. The Senator, on the other hand, is a widower with a little son, his first wife, formerly Miss Lady Lee Phillips, of Memphis, Tenn., having died about six years ago. Senator Edge has a house at No. 1524 Rhode Island avenue in Washington, where the Sewalls made their residence last Winter.

It was during the Senator's visit at the Bath, Me., home of the Sewalls that the latter officially announced the intended betrothal. It is of particular interest to graduates of the exclusive Winsor School in Brookline, which Miss Sewall attended. She has also studied in Paris and at the Dominican Convent in Nemours, Belgium.

FROM fun-loving "debbies" to dignified matrons, practically the entire feminine contingent of the smart set will be on duty next week for the three days—Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday—when society takes over Mr. Jay's shop on Temple place for the benefit of the Children's Hospital.

On those three days the entire corps of saleswomen will be made up of Social Register folk, for Mr. Jay has offered to turn over one-fifth of the entire amount taken in by his shop during that time, and one-fourth of the proceeds, as was previously and earnestly stated.

PROBABLY one of the younger set's cleverest housewives is Miss Andrea Adie, daughter of the Andrew Adie of the well-known Adie family. A few of the others who will see duty behind the counter along with Miss Adie are Madames Barrett, Wendell, Boring, Lovell, Quincy Shaw, Harold Coolidge, Walter Bayles, Livermore Wells, Richard Strong, Sidney Homer, Philip Sears and Thomas Prince Best, Jr., well as a host of others.

MR. OSCAR LASIGI of Beacon street has returned to these shores after a trip abroad during which he was in Stockholm.

ADMIRAL AND MRS. CAMERON McILWINLOW and their family are receiving the heartiest of welcomes upon their return to Winter home on Bay State road after a long season in the New York City. The admiral and his wife have two older daughters of the name, Natalie and Theodore Winlow, who are quite prominent in the activities of the Younger set here. Only son, is at the U. S. Naval Academy.

During their stay at the Rhode Island watering place Natalie and Theodore Winlow played tennis almost daily at the Casino, and were rated among the best players there. Admiral Winlow was an ardent devotee to the game, and was no stranger on the courts.

THE many Boston friends of Mrs. James Cummings Barr will be glad to hear that she will soon be able to return to her home following an operation at the New York Hospital, where she is convalescing.

Mr. and Mrs. Barr, whose New York home is at No. 11 East Sixty-eighth street, formerly resided in Boston, where they are still frequent visitors. They rarely if ever miss the Harvard-Yale football game, Mr. Barr is of the Harvard '89 class—and they are always royally entertained by their Boston friends and relatives when the Blue and Crimson battle at the Stadium.

DAY'S NEWS IN Jazz Time
By MORTON BIRGE

The "Boston" series gets away between the New York clubs to-day.

The contest seems like Boston teams. For quite apparent reason.

With most excusable regret. The Ancients leave Bermuda wet. A cooler day—Oh, lucky they! Who bought their coal in season?

In Saugus town Indignant wives Have swelled the list of booting drives.

We'll never get the allies' debt Some bankers are maintaining.

The envoys meet to fight for peace; Was "the glory that was Greece?" While Russia stands with eager hands And hopes of profit-gaining.

In Winchester the "color" muss is followed by financial fuss. The pretty town is up-to-date down. With one thing and another.

New Jersey justice shakes its crawl, Exhumes the corpse of Rector Hall. Perhaps they'll get the slayer yet, Although it's quite a bother.

Wide the net of news they haul; In the "GREEN" you find it all.

ACTING MAYOR QUILTS; QUIET IN CHELSEA

FRANK D. CROWLEY

Chelsea's "Acting Mayor" has thrown up the sponge. After three months as chief executive, John C. M. Tucker has decided to stick to the plumbing business and let someone else worry about municipal leadership.

Bright and early today the battle for the title of acting mayor in City Hall corridors awaited the results of the election.

It did not come. Word had gone around that Mayor Lawrence F. O'Brien had refused to be shelled, even though he is in the hospital and that Secretary Frank D. Crowley had decided on the "knock him down and drag him out" policy.

Tucker insisted that he was still acting Mayor.

Chief of Police Charles M. Finn and Superintendent of Streets James A. O'Brien insisted that they were the acting Mayor.

They had been ordered to confer with the "acting" Mayor and make a decision as to their department's future. After a long wait, they decided that they had more important duties elsewhere.

Temporarily the crowd watched. But the fall president of the Board of Aldermen failed to appear. He was finally located in his plumbing office by a Boston American reporter.

"NOT NEEDED" NOW.
"I'm not in City Hall today," he was asked.

"No, I'm not. I was served with a subpoena last night which says that Mayor Crowley is getting better. I'll be in tomorrow."

The certificate was signed by Dr. William Brown, who is attending the Mayor. It stated that the Mayor was in full possession of his faculties and able to conduct the duties of Mayor of the city. The certificate was attested to by Secretary Crowley, who is an attorney and justice of the peace.

Then the fun began. Armed with this "authority," Tucker took control of the Mayor's office.

He welcomed the press in the public building, and the "acting" Mayor, "firing" four men. He insisted the police and street cleaning department be needed a sweeping and the conference planned for today was for the purpose of raising action.

J. C. M. Tucker along those lines. Suddenly, the first duty of Secretary Crowley today was to resign the honor and walk off. While Mr. Crowley was being interviewed, a clerk brought in a paper for him to sign. On the paper was the signature of Mr. Tucker, as Acting Mayor. Very effectively all Mr. Crowley's move that name from the sheet.

GIRL ELECTED TO STUDENT CABINET

One girl and four men were chosen members of the Student Cabinet of the University of Massachusetts.

The cabinet consists of Miss Zella Tortolani, 24, of Providence, R. I., was the only girl to be chosen. Membership in this cabinet is based upon high scholarship and participation in college activities.

Other members are: Sterling W. Greene, 22, of Watertown, president of the sophomore class; Stanley Parker, 24, of North Adams, and Paul Buswell, 24, of Hingham, N. Y., and John J. Murray of Cambridge, Veteran's Bureau representative.

The cabinet confers with the Dean on matters relative to the college government.

DIVORCE NOT ASKED FROM ACTRESS

In the Boston American of September 13, it was stated that Lieutenant Bradford Barrette, U. S. N., the husband of Julia Handerson, who plays the star role in "Tangier," had instituted divorce proceedings in the New York Supreme Court, naming her leading man, Frank Grigitt, as co-respondent.

There was no hint for these statements. Lieutenant Barrette has not brought proceedings against Miss Handerson and has made no charges against Mr. Grigitt, or anyone.

The American regrets that the unfounded charges were published.

FULL AMNESTY OFFERED IRISH REPUBLICANS

Dublin, Oct. 4. (By the Associated Press)—It was in the hope of restoring peace without further bloodshed that the Irish government offered full amnesty to all offenders who surrender their arms by October 15, says a proclamation to this effect.

The document sets forth the government's knowledge that many persons have been forced to participate in rebellious actions "against their will and better judgment, while others have come to realize that they have in truth put their hands to the ruin of their motherland."

"The government," adds the proclamation, "moved by the hope of restoring peace without further bloodshed, has decided that it will, with the majority of their countrymen, and in withdrawal from this rebellion with tranquility, for themselves."

MEETINGS OF THE IRISH REPUBLICAN BROTHERHOOD will be held at 10 o'clock on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

MASHER FLEES AS GIRL IS INJURED

Bertha Mitchell, eighteen years of age, of No. 3 Thorne Park, South Boston, was walking along Tremont street near the Common when a well-dressed young man on a motor cycle came to a stop beside her and asked her to go for a ride.

At Arlington square one wheel caught in the fog of a car track switch. The motor cycle collapsed and rolled over several times, turning clear of the motorcycle, which added on its side.

Miss Mitchell was thrown out violently, striking her head on the pavement. The young man was uninjured, he hastily rubbed his hands, leaped into the saddle, and fled away without one glance at his unconscious companion.

A passerby in an automobile gave chase but the speedy motorcycle soon distanced him. Others went to Miss Mitchell's aid. She was taken to the City Hospital by the police, and was found to have concussion of the brain and a possible fractured skull.

FOREST FIRES CAUSE ALARM IN MAINE

Portland, Me., Oct. 4.—A pall of smoke which hung over Portland last night and alarmed residents was traced by investigators to forest fires raging over many acres along the base of the Canadian Pacific Railroad road around Jackman and Hallowell, near the Canadian border.

Maine Central officials received reports of extensive fires in that territory. Jackman is about 300 miles from Portland by railroad and 125 by air line. The wind was right to waft the smoke in the direction.

Some 100 men are fighting forest fires raging near Beekmantown, along Nigler Brook, and near Waterville. Another fire is reported at Shirley, below Greenville. A stubborn brush fire is being fought along the St. John railway and there is a blaze at Burbank's storehouse.

Minnesota's Forests

Sea of Flame and Smoke

Duluth, Minn., Oct. 4.—Northern Minnesota's forest area today continued a veritable sea of smoke colored smoke, dotted with fires, some under control, some admittedly beyond control, and the whole threatening further widespread destruction at the slightest provocation of the elements.

In St. Louis county there were 105 fires burning.

Women and children have been removed from all of the threatened areas to places of safety and personal belongings were being either taken out or made ready for instant evacuation. There was no indication this morning that the prayers of the whole north country for less wind and plenty of rain would be answered today.

Hunters Heed Baxter's

Warning About Fires

Augusta, Me., Oct. 4.—Reports of additional fires spreading through valuable timber lands led hunters to heed carefully today the proclamation by Governor Percival P. Baxter last night, in which he said the hunting season would be stopped if forest conflagrations continued. Governor Baxter said fifteen forest fires were reported to his office yesterday.

GRAND JURY GETS DOWNEY EVIDENCE

Evidence in the case of Paul Downey, former downtown clerk at the Federal Trust Company, was presented to the Grand Jury today. He is charged with larceny of $127,000 from the Trust Company. Prior to this a hearing was held in the Municipal Court before Judge Lewis. Robert L. Finn and Humphrey Lane, two bookmakers, were also arraigned for complicity in the case. A continuance to October 9 was granted when requested by Inspector John C. Dorsey.

REPORT FASCISTI PLOT TO TAKE POWER

Rome, Oct. 4 (By International News Service).—A conspiracy of the Italian Fascisti to seize ministerial power in Rome was reported to have been discovered today. According to the plans, the Fascisti, at the forthcoming celebration by Italy of the defeat of Austria, were to mobilize in this city, seize all public buildings, dissolve parliament, call a general election and summon the King to form a new cabinet with Nationalist aspirations.

STRATHCONA SPRINGS ALEAK AND SINKS

St. John's, N. F., Oct. 4.—The Gravel-Medium steamer Strathcona, which has completed twenty years' service along the coast of Labrador and northern Newfoundland as a hospital ship, sank today a few miles off Cabot Island. A raging sea caused a leak in the Strathcona last week, but this was not regarded as serious. Monday she started from St. Anthony to Bay Roberts to lay up for the winter. Ten miles out, water began to pour in rapidly and the ship was abandoned.

32,000 WETS NABBED IN NINE MONTHS

Philadelphia, Oct. 4.—More than 32,000 persons were arrested by Philadelphia police during the first nine months of this year for violations of the prohibition laws, according to a report made today by James B. Connelley, director of public safety. "Drunk and disorderly," the report said, still leads among the charges listed on the police blotter.

MORE JEWISH STUDENTS ENTER HARVARD THIS YEAR THAN LAST

FRESHMAN FIGURES QUOTED

Increase Unexpected Following Protest at Proposal to Restrict Entrance

In spite of the nation-wide protest that followed the proposal to restrict the enrollment of Jews at Harvard College, more Jews entered the Freshman class at Harvard this year than last.

This fact was indicated by lists which have just been completed at the Phillips Brooks House. While a statement of religious faith is not required from everyone admitted to Harvard, each new student is asked to state his belief, and many do so.

LARGE INCREASE. According to this information, which is the most complete available, thirty-seven of these admitted to the Freshman class gave their religion as Jewish. Last year the number was sixty-two. The total Freshman enrollment this year was slightly under that of last year.

This was taken to indicate clearly a considerable increase in the enrollment of Jews this year. It was stated that the total Jewish enrollment was greatly in excess of the figures given, but that the proportions held good.

Leading Jewish students admitted that the increase is unexpected. Harry Barr, vice president of the National Menorah, and last year's president of the Harvard chapter, stated today that he had not many Jews during the summer who declared emphatically that they would never enter Harvard because of proposals to restrict admission.

INCREASE A SURPRISE.

Max Goldberg, the present president of the Menorah, said that he had expected some falling off in the Jewish enrollment. The Menorah, which is the Jewish organization, will endeavor to heal any breach which may exist now between the Jews and Gentiles, Barr declared.

"The Menorah has planned no official action in connection with the alleged attempts to exclude Jews from Harvard," he said. The organization, on the other hand, will do its best to restore good feeling between the races here.

NEWSPAPER MAN DIES IN AIRPLANE FLIGHT

Berlin, Oct. 4. (By International News Service.)—George Popoff, Moscow correspondent of International News Service and one of the best known newspaper correspondents in Northern Europe, was killed today while making an airplane flight from Berlin to Moscow. Mr. Popoff was formerly stationed in Riga for International News Service.

Why from 10c to 9 1/2c

The Edison Company's maximum rate for electricity is now 9 1/2 cents per kilowatt hour.

It was reduced from 10 cents on September 1 last.

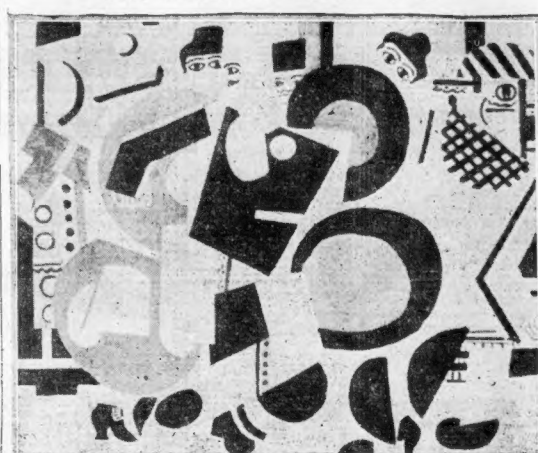

A previous reduction in this rate was made on March 1 last by the removal of the coal clause and 5 percent. additional charge.

These reductions were made possible:

1. Because of increasing business.
2. Because this new business could be supplied without proportionally increased investment.
3. Because of increasing economies in operation.

Flapper Goes in Over Her Head When She Becomes Cubist Artist

The cubist artist of Beacon Hill said this was the result of a too placid soul. But in his case I think it was just professional jealousy. If you ask me I think there's a lot of meaning in my picture.

By THE FLAPPER

(Curt Fritts)

The cubist artist of Beacon Hill had long been promising to teach me to be a cubist artist. You don't have to go to art school to be a cubist. In fact you don't need a cubist. It's just one of those things you pick up. The best cubist artists never get a chance to get their work before the public. The audience won't let them out.

"What is cubism?" I asked the artist, to start with.

"What is it?" he replied with a deep sigh. "What is death?"

"What is anything? That's what we seek to express. The futility of everything. The vagueness of everything. The vacant longings—"

"Max Goldberg, the present president of the Menorah, said that he had expected some falling off in the Jewish enrollment. The Menorah, which is the Jewish organization, will endeavor to heal any breach which may exist now between the Jews and Gentiles, Barr declared.

"What is anything? That's what we seek to express. The futility of everything. The vagueness of everything. The vacant longings—"

"But, how do I start. What are the first rules?"

"You have no rules. We are free, free. Don't you know what that means? Not to be restricted in our method of self-expression—ah, it is everything."

So the artist gave me some paint and a canvas and told me to express myself for all I was worth.

So I did. For several minutes I worked silently and nothing could be heard in the artist's attic but the gentle splashing of paint.

"You sound," remarked the artist, "like a man with whippers."

ending soap. Can't you be quieter at your art?"

HARDING BACKS 'SAVING WAGE' FOR WORKERS

Detroit, Oct. 4.—President Harding believes the railroad worker is of such importance that his wages and the conditions under which he works should be such as to make his employment so attractive that strikes will be impossible. Secretary Davis of the Labor Department declared here today in addressing the convention of United Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employees and Railway Shop Laborers. He advocated a "saving wage" for the American worker.

"More and more American employees are seeing the wisdom of the saving wage," he continued. "This wage principle promotes happiness and contentment in the workman's home, increases the buying power of the group of American wage-earners upon whom we depend to buy a great part of our great industrial output."

"The President has voiced his views thus: 'The workman's lowest wage must be enough to make his house a home, enough to insure that the struggle for existence shall not crowd out the things worth existing for.'"

United organized labor has always been dedicated to the cause of law and order, Mr. Davis said, adding that "despite its efforts and the efforts of its leaders, however, violence does occasionally break forth." "We have had too much violence in our industrial life," he added, "too much strife, too much bloodshed. Labor must be ever alert to prevent these unlawful outbreaks which disgrace our whole civilization."

PEARL WHITE IS ROBBED OF PEARLS

New York, Oct. 4.—Pearl White, moving picture actress, was robbed of jewels valued at $150,000 when burglars jimmed the door of her apartment. The robbery was discovered by her housekeeper when she returned from an errand. The housekeeper telephoned to the police and notified neighbors.

Miss White was notified and hastened home. When she saw the state of the robbery she became hysterical. Detectives reported that they were surprised to find an insurance adjuster had been there ahead of them. The jewelry was valued at $150,000. One coat worth $10,000, had been thrown on the floor and trampled on by the robbers.

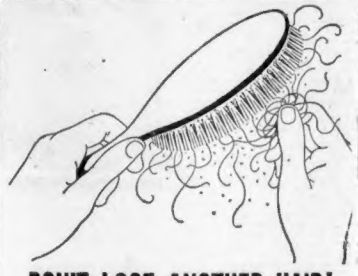

Most of the lost consisted of pearls and diamonds.

SEEKS FULL ALIMONY IN DEDHAM SUIT

This beautiful divorcee claims her former father-in-law keeps her husband—that was on a salary of $12 a week in order to cheat her out of her full alimony.

She is a Philadelphia girl and started society in this section with a series of marriages and divorces.

GIRL LURED OUT OF CONVENT

Lured from the peace and spiritual calm of a convent in Italy by the glowing promise of wedded bliss in America, Carmela Bertolini gave up her veil and sailed for the United States.

Once here, the Devil kept delaying the wedding date until Carmela's Latin blood boiled. Now she seeks $20,000 in alimony.

Denies She $250 for Best Letter Opposing Jilted Dentist

HELEN BROADBENT.

$100 Second $50 Third Prize $2 for Each Letter Printed

A law aimed at the Family Theatre is being urged for the State of Massachusetts.

This law has been passed as a referendum by the State Legislature. Voters are to determine at the polls on November 7 whether it shall become a law.

The law provides for state censorship of moving pictures. You already have state censorship of all moving pictures shown on Sunday, and that censorship has rendered Sunday's moving pictures so disagreeable that few people care to see them.

This newspaper is opposed to censorship. It is tyrannical, unwise and un-American. It is UNCONSTITUTIONAL, as the Constitution guarantees freedom of speech and publicity, and the moving picture is one form of publicity.

This newspaper is opposed to having the people surrender a single right to arbitrary legal power. Too many of the people's rights already have been given up.

This newspaper will pay $100 for the best letter on this subject, $50 for the second best letter, $25 for the third best letter, $2 for each letter printed.

No get busy send in as many arguments as you please.

There is no limit to the number of letters that anyone may write. The names of the judges will be announced in a few days. A few letters follow:

BEAUTY CLAIMS PA-IN-LAW IS CHEATING

Mrs. L. H. M. H. Pushee

The beautiful girl first came to prominence as the wife of Horatio Harris, son of one of the wealthy families in Greater Boston. Hardly had she begun to take her place in society when there came rumors of trouble in the family, and suddenly the two were divorced.

Goosey over this sensation had secretly "suspended" when the one Mrs. Harris slept with Roy M. Pushee, son of a Boston manufacturer.

The runaway marriage was celebrated in Salem, N. H., and then came another divorce. Now Mrs. Pushee is suing her father-in-law, charging that he employs his son at $12 a week in order that the son may not be able to pay his former wife her alimony. In her suit Mrs. Pushee alleges that Roy actually receives a much higher salary, but his father has him on the payroll at $12 in order to defraud her of what she is due.

ROXBURY GIRL, CHIDED, TAKES POISON

Better Jean confess her sin, a parent, Mary Bennett, seventeen-year-old North End schoolgirl, attempted suicide by swallowing iodine in front of her home at No. 51 West Lenox street.

An hour before the unconscious form of the girl was found by police the North End street girl had an altercation with her father.

Interviewed at his home, the father said "I told Mary that she would make her son go to confession. I wanted her to confess her sins to the priest and she refused."

I also urged her sisters, Helen, who is nearest to go to confession, she also refused.

"This was too much," I do not stand for such disobedience in my children. Turning to my youngest girl, Mary, I said, "If you don't go to church tonight I will bring the priest here to the house and make you confess to him."

"Both my girls fled from the house and I went to church to pray. When I returned, I found my daughter weeping and learned that Mary had swallowed a dose of poison in front of the house."

Mary, who is still in the throes of poison, is not at City Hospital. Her mother does not wish to see her father. When her sister attempted to see her daughter he was informed by hospital authorities that the girl was in no condition to listen to "practicing."

No reason is the girl's condition that they finally forsake the father's submission to the present. The girl will recover.

FRIENDS DISCOVER LAWSON IS MISSING

JACK DELPSEY WILL GET REAL TEST FROM THOMPSON

ROBINSON IS ALSO ON FANFULAR A. C. CARD

By JACK CONWAY

You must give the fight fans fighting just the same as you must serve the fans of the drama.

The Boston American has the honor of presenting Jack Thompson, one of the greatest of our colored prizefighters, against Jack Dempsey at the Palace Theatre, big show at Mechanics Building, Saturday night.

But that is not all. There will be a real test for Robinson.

George Robinson, considered by many experts as the world's greatest of colored prizefighters, will fight George McFarlane of Boston, at the same place, Saturday night.

Young Thomas of Boston will battle with W. L. McFarlane of Boston.

Travis Madala of East Boston will battle Francis Green of Boston.

Tom Collier of Quincy will have pin ups at the Palace Theatre.

McFarlane of Quincy will have pin ups at the Palace Theatre.

Heavyweights Once More in the Ring

The big thing, though, is that Robinson and Dempsey have finally been joined up. The intense rivalry between the two camps will surely mean that the prize will fight all the harder for supremacy.

The second was a gambler named George McFarlane of Quincy, who was a favorite of the crowd. He was a real old hand, and he was a real old hand. He was a real old hand, and he was a real old hand.

Robinson is the world's best, and he is the world's best. Robinson is the world's best, and he is the world's best. Robinson is the world's best, and he is the world's best.

A swiftness dash of fun seasoned the convention business of the Greater Boston Bakers at Swampscott. Sports added to the attractive program. Mrs. Allen H. Hathaway, wife of the prominent Boston baker, is showing her skill with bow and arrow.

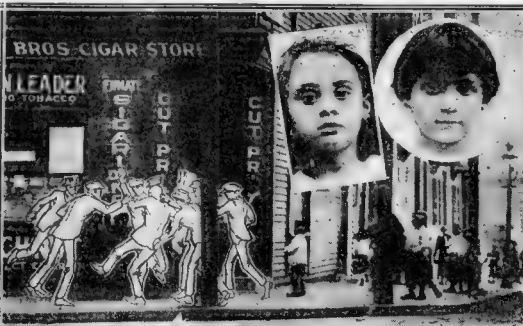

OVER 30,000 ATTEND RECORD BREAKING
Opening Day at Brockton Fair! Young America, gay and gaily, dressed in rags and silk, flocked to the big gates—for it was Children's Day and admission was free. Of course there was the usual parade, with a flag raising by Fred Field, president of the fair, and children's sports with the boy and girl squads competing with the grammar school youngsters. It was Children's Day, but there was much to attract the grown-ups, not to mention the race track and the exhibits of livestock. Above at left is Miss Catherine Welch and "Huntstman," who won honors for her in the pony high jump, and in the large circle is an excellent action picture of Fred Wattlek winning a ribbon in the novice hunter class with his gelding, "King Zee." Picture pastoral and rustic smoothed the eye throughout the day, like the one at the top, for instance, when some inquisitive lambs wandered on the race track and the faithful shepherd dog was right on the job to shoo them back into their pen. DRUGGED YOUTH UNABLE TO ASSIST POLICE IN HUNT FOR "VAMPIRE!"
non Davis, just 17, of Standard street, West End (above), has lost faith in women. The photodiagram shows how he was found wandering among the trees on Boston Common after he had been taken to a Tremont street house by a strange girl. He says she asked him to drink a greenish liquid. He remembers things else until he arrived at the City Hospital where the doctors declared he was the victim of a rage drug. Incidentally $40 and a gold watch of his are missing.

F. G. HARMON OF TECH,

MARY KIDNEY wins the post of private secretary to HALL DAWSON, a dynamic promoter with office in Water street. She instinctively fears him. After the countess checks for $100, which she accepts with misgivings. Rescued by Dawson, however, she plunges into her work, dreaming of the day she will be his partner. Mary goes to the red parade of the returning Yankee division and meets PAT, a handsome lieutenant. PAT is in love with MAHONEY, a young millionaire, declares his love for her. Pat takes Mary riding and she realizes she loves him only. She receives a letter of proposal from Mahoney and answers it. She goes to the dance at the home of the millionaire for her portrait to Allan Bruce. Dawson insults her at his house and Mrs. Dawson orders her out. She receives a letter from Pat telling her he loves her. She gets a new job. She goes to the dance at the home of the millionaire. She loves her job and refuses to elope with Bruce.

"Clean, with a big lawn in front. A woman with a square jaw and a big nose led the way upstairs, talking all the time.

"She opened the door on a beautiful sun-flooded room. A girl with a high forehead, a rosy cheek smoking a cigarette, she was wrapped in a costly, embroidered silk kimono. She got up as I came in, looking at me with sharp, penetrating eyes.

"'Hope you won't mind if I have company now and then?' She asked in a lazy, insinuating voice. 'I'll be just as agreeable to your friends as you are.'

"'I'm looking for a room by myself,' I said, amazed.

"'You want something for $15 a month, you want sun and clean furniture, and you're the kind of a girl I like,' she said, and then she asked, 'That's the best I've got. Take it or leave it.'

"'I have to have a room,' I said, and she led me to a room with a

I took the package, hurried out, walking rapidly, considering plans, excuses I would make, dismissing one after another.

It was then I discovered the device that seemed to me flawless. No one knew I had left the shipping office. I would tell the manager and the two assistants were leaving on an extended haul. I would tell the newspaper photographer who was to have accompanied the party because ill. And I would tell the man who had referred to me. I had taken it. We were leaving tonight.

It was then I discovered many questions.

June and Angelo were gone out to dinner. I would not tell them. I would not tell them of the examination; would not even have to say goodbye. At the last moment I would rush to the bank and tell Della. Then I would send letters from New York, say I was in the city, that the man offered me and I had taken it.

It would settle everything—the package would be delivered. I would be out of every one's way. They would not have to worry about

I reached the flat, letting myself in from the front door, walking to the kitchen. I rushed into my room, dumping out the treasures I had packed in the suitcase, and found a pile of my clothes, the packing torn and the things scattered about. And suddenly I shut the door and went into the kitchen, making a dash for the door, and hurried unnecessary things prepared for the dinner.

I had put on a frock I began to dress.

"Hurry, darling, hurry! Something's happened," said the maid, not looking at him, taking his arm and rushing him to a taxi, and I was off in a flash to New York. Tonight, yes, tonight! He watched me, amazed, baffled, and then said, "But—"

"You can't go, you're not ready—"

"I'm ready," I said, and I laughed at them, talked and waved them aside. At last he was free.

"I think it came very lucky, dear." My confidence grew with my knowledge, and I knew I would be terribly inconvenient to my friends, but I could tell them. June's out and I can't reach Della on the phone, but

A BOSTON GIRL By Eleanore Meherin

"Oh, dear!" he said, shaking his head. "I don't like it, Mary. I'd like to keep it all here with me, but I can't. I've got to put it on his hands." I dreamed of Maggie last night. She stood at the window, looking out at the moon. She was telling me something, but I couldn't hear her. I was so tired and finally she turned impatiently and left."

"So superstitious, dad! But I got up shaking and cleared my throat. I was so nervous, by turns, now hoping that Clara might come over and keep me company, now fearing that she would, dreaming more than anything else that she would."

Dad followed me warbling with anxiety, nervousness, and confusion. "You can't be too nervous, Mary."

"No, no, no, no! I'll be too busy," I wrote from my cot.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

Here are the most interesting phases of the largest convention ever held by the largest financial association in the world, the annual pow-wow of 10,000 members of the American Bankers' Association, which has a total membership of nearly 25,000.

The wholesale exchanging of views and news among bankers from all parts of the country, and particularly the encouraging features of the daily round of interviews, is bound to prove most wholesome, helpful and stimulating.

It seems to be agreed that the thing more needed than anything else is more confidence and confidence is the one thing more needed than anything else.

Most of our heavyweights bankers are revealing—rather timidly—that they hope to do something by the holding of this convention to bring about a more unified public opinion in the United States. It is the opinion of the bankers that the public is not sufficiently informed of the situation in this country, and that the public is not sufficiently informed of the situation in this country.

The president of the Texas Bankers' Association, J. D. Davis, called to me to say: "Texas has a cotton crop of two-thirds to three-fourths of normal in quantity and its price has been good, growers have been getting better prices. The end of the season, I don't believe will be a bank in the shape of a hot bet in first-class shape. All borrowed money is being retired. Although the stock market is still struggling, sheep and wool are quite prosperous, the oil industry has been very active, and altogether things in Texas are getting to be very satisfactory condition."

Said Frank D. Stalmaker, president of the Indiana National Bank of Indianapolis, "We are beginning to notice some increase in the demand for money. This means that manufacturers and other business is picking up. We have had an excellent crop of wheat. What has not done so well, but cattle and hogs have brought very satisfactory prices. The situation is all right."

The man who will follow John F. Dulac as president of the American Bankers' Association, Walter S. Wood, of the National Bank, says: "The outlook in Nebraska is very bright. It has been at any time in the last three years."

SOMERVILLE BOUGHT IN BOSTON

Somerville has sold $250,000 of 4 per cent. common schoolhouse bonds, October 2, 1922. The bonds were sold in each of years 1922 to 1943 inclusive, to Huxley & Brown and Parkman & Co., Boston, and to the bidders were: National City Company, 100,000; Blake Brothers, 100,000; and the City of Somerville, 100,000.

NEW YORK BROKERS HAILED INTO COURT

Involuntary petition in bankruptcy has been filed in Federal court in New York against Bernard Baruch, individually and trading as Culler & Company. Liability of the firm suspended from the Consolidated Stock Exchange, were estimated in the petition at upwards of $10,000,000 and assets at $7,000,000.

EXTRA DIVIDEND ON PERE MARQUETTE PFD.

Pere Marquette declared extra dividend of 1 per cent. on preferred and regular quarterly dividend of 1 1/2 per cent. on 5 per cent. preferred stock, all payable November 1 to stock of record October 31.

Of course men often have their pockets picked by strangers. One guy woke up the other night and saw a burglar going through his trousers. He turned over, looked at the peaceful look on his wife's face and then gave the burglar the "Ha Ha."

The burglar was disappointed.

Twain beds were invented by female pickpockets who wanted to go trouser prowling at night without waking their husbands.

So whenever you see a man with wrinkled suit don't criticize him, maybe he has to sleep with his clothes on.

JOHN P. MEDBURY.
